Occupational Health focused on your needs

An Occupational Health service is an integral part of a company's commitment to its workforce. All companies are unique and their hazard and risk profiles will be quite different. As such, our service is flexible and matched to each client's specific needs. Our success lies in working as part of your team.

Queens Road Occupational Health offers an initial review of your premises/operations before proposing a suitable package. The content of each package will be tailored to your needs.

With an established Occupational Health Team, we have the expertise to advise on and deliver the package that is appropriate to your workplace and environment
